HANNA TO RUN FOR MAYOR

The Former Ex-Mayor and Well Known Attorney Yields to the Wishes and Persuasion of Friends.

A couple of weeks ago it was announced that T. H. Hanna had determined not to enter the field for mayor at the coming election, he personally desiring to keep out of office for the present, but yielding to the continued solicitation of friends, he authorizes The Gazette to announce his candidacy. Nomination papers were circulated in his behalf several weeks ago, and will be filed in due time. Mr. Hanna needs no introduction to the voters of Stevens Point, this city having been his home for a number of years. He is one of our best known attorneys, has been and is interested in different local enterprises, and for four years held the office for which he again asks the support of the voters of this municipality.

Is Very Ill.

Mrs. O. S. Smith continues very ill at her home, 911 East avenue, and grave fears are felt by her family and friends. She is suffering with abscess on the kidneys, and when not under the influence of opiates experiences much pain. Mrs. Smith is the mother of nine daughters and one son, all of whom have been here for several days. The son, Wm. Smith, is a well known farmer in the town of Almond, and the other members of the family are Mrs. D. W. O'Connell, Mrs. Delbert Otto and Mrs. Ed. Baldwin of Bayfield, Mrs. Ernest Precourt of Buena Vista, Mrs. Peter Donsa and Mrs. S. W. Kolk of Almond, Miss Addie Smith of Milwaukee, Mrs. L. N. Sovey and Mrs. B. W. Willett of this city.

LADIES ELECT OFFICERS

Woman's Club Held Annual Meeting, Listen to Interesting Program and Choose Leaders for Ensuing Year.

Members of the Woman's Club met in annual meeting at the library club rooms, last Saturday afternoon, at which time officers and committees presented reports of the work done during the past year and made suggestions for the coming year. Mrs. W. J. Shumway read a paper entitled "Looking Forward," and Mrs. G. E. McDill presented another entitled "Looking Backward," both of which showed much thought and study and were well received by those in attendance. Charles Downie sang two baritone solos and was accompanied by Miss Katherine Rood. Officers for the coming year were chosen as follows and the regular board of managers with additional committees will be announced later:

President—Mrs. F. F. Showers.
First Vice—Mrs. F. E. Noble.
Second Vice—Mrs. G. A. Whitney.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. C. B. Baker.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. W. B. Buckingham.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. A. Arendberg.
Membership Committee—Mrs. G. E. Whitney, Mrs. F. A. Walters, Mrs. E. W. Sellers, Mrs. M. W. Buck, Mrs. A. M. Nelson.

A custom of the Club in the past has been to present the retiring president and recording secretary with gifts in appreciation of their services, and in accordance with this custom, Mrs. C. Conlisk and Mrs. N. A. Week each were given a very handsome, new style souvenir spoon, the presentation being made in a very graceful manner by Mrs. C. B. Baker. As Mrs. G. I. Stratton, who has capably filled the position of chairman of the social committee for some years, is shortly to leave the city permanently, she was made the recipient of a pretty silver jewel case, carrying with it the good wishes of the Club.

At the close of the meeting refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and all thoroughly enjoyed the social hour.

Census Enumerators.

Several census enumerators in this county have received their commissions and will be ready to commence work April 15th. Among the assignments are: Stevens Point, 1st ward, J. W. Strope; 2d ward, Ray Clifford; 3d ward, C. W. Swan; 4th ward, Frank Shipley; 5th ward, C. W. Simonson; Dewey, Henry Schleisman; Linwood, Milo Wood; Stockton, Grace Arnott; Carson, Leo Hein; Sharon, G. W. Allen.

Died in Lanark.

Miss Mary Hanley, aged about 55 years, and a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hanley, passed away at her home in Lanark last Saturday and the funeral took place from St. Patrick's church at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Rev. Jas. E. Meagher officiating, with interment in the adjoining cemetery. Since the passing away of her parents several years ago, the deceased and her brother, Thos. Hanley, had occupied the old homestead together.

Turf From the "Old Sod."

A sod of Irish turf, containing a number of little shamrocks, has been on exhibition in the show window at the H. D. McCulloch Co. drug store this week. This is a part of that recently imported from Ireland by residents of Chicago and intended to be used for President Taft to stand upon while delivering his St. Patrick's day speech, but this idea was abandoned owing to possible diplomatic complications. Chas. McCarthy, a Stevens Point young man, whose headquarters have been in Chicago during the past few years, was a member of the entertainment committee and sent the sod to his mother, Mrs. Margaret McCarthy.

FIFTEEN YEARS IN PRISON

Young Man Who Shot and Killed His Father Sentenced to Waupaca—Other Court Doings

Frank Melczynski, the nineteen year old boy who shot and fatally wounded his father, in the town of Dewey, several weeks ago, was sentenced by Judge Webb shortly before court adjourned last Wednesday afternoon, being given fifteen years in state prison. He had previously entered a plea of guilty to murder in the second degree, the penalty for which is from 14 to 30 years. In reply to questions from the court, the young man said he had lived only about five years during his entire life with his father, and had no intention of shooting him or anyone else on the night of the fatal encounter.

In the case of the state vs. Jos. Dulock of Amherst Junction, who was charged with fishing with a net in Lake Emily, the jury, which consisted of E. H. Joy, Sumner Sparks, Amasa Gower, Henry Halle, Wm. C. Yetts, C. W. Rickman, Fred Dudy, Alvin Potter, Ed. Cooney, John Fisher, George Johnson and Earl Newby, brought in a verdict of not guilty, Wednesday evening, after being out an hour or more. Dist. Atty. Nelson appeared for the prosecution and D. I. Sickelsteel for the defense. In justice court Dulock was found guilty.

Jas. Fielding vs. Winfield Towne. Settled and discontinued.

Mae Hansen vs. Julius Hansen. Interlocutory judgment of divorce.

John R. McDonald vs. John H. Wallace. Continued.

First National bank of Omro vs. E. Frank et al. Continuance granted on application of A. Lorenze, one of the defendants.

Gertrude McMillan vs. Otis E. McMillan. Interlocutory judgment of divorce granted.

Jas. Beesley et al. vs. Walter R. Benedict et al. Waupaca county special judgment of foreclosure and sale.

Frederick E. Pinkham vs. Wisconsin Central Railway Co. Case commenced last Thursday before the following jurors: Moses Leary, Frank Dent, Ed. Cooney, Fred Dudy, Ailen Barr, John E. Welch, Alvin Potter, Wm. C. Zetter, Frank Gruber, Nic Eiden, C. W. Rickman and Charles Newby. Will H. Thompson for plaintiff, Walter D. Corrigan and B. B. Park for defendant. Attorneys will no doubt finish arguments to jury this afternoon.

Candidate for Senator.

Dor C. Hall, the well known actor writes: "I shall present myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination at 1910 September primaries for the office of State Senator, from the 21st district of Wisconsin. Kindly keep me in mind as a business man, for business men's consideration."

While Mr. Hall has been at the head of his company for years, Stevens Point has always been his home, and any matter addressed to him here always reaches him no matter where he may be. The 21st district is composed of Portage and Waupaca counties, the present representative being Senator E. E. Browne, of Waupaca.

Well Attended Annual Meeting.

Stockholders of the Iola Lead & Zinc Co. met in annual meeting at the offices of B. B. Park, in this city, Monday evening. The meeting was well attended, stockholders being present from a number of places in the state, including Medford, Marshfield, Rib Lake, Cedarburg, Goodrich, etc. The property of this company is located near Yellville, Ark. After matters of interest to the stockholders had been discussed officers and directors were chosen as follows:

President—Dr. W. W. Gregory.
Vice Pres.—E. M. White.
Secretary—Dr. F. A. Southwick.
Treasurer—J. B. Becker.
Directors—Drs. Gregory and Southwick, Stevens Point; Dr. Doege, Marshfield; J. B. Becker, Cedarburg; E. M. White, Goodrich.

Circles Half of Wisconsin.

In order to return here from the northern country in time to attend the Normal fair, Saturday evening, Pres. John F. Sims had several unusually strenuous hours. He went to Green Bay Thursday afternoon and next morning delivered an address to teachers and students. Mr. Sims then boarded a train for Wabeno, Forest county, where he spoke that afternoon and again at a mass meeting in the evening. A cross-country drive of twelve miles was taken that night to Laona, which he reached at about 1 o'clock and a few hours later the gentleman started for home via Rhineland and Prentice Junction, reaching here on the Soo train at 2:11 that afternoon. He made almost a complete circle around the north half of the state, traveling upwards of four hundred miles.

Fine Concert by Union Band.

The second concert given this season under the auspices of the Union band, was enjoyed by a large audience at the Grand, last Thursday evening. The program consisted of thirteen numbers, each of which was enjoyed by all present, and if there had been several more none would have become weary, notwithstanding that each selection was encouraged and responded to. The instrumental baritone solo by Claude Eagleburger and tuba solo by A. W. White added to the pleasure of the evening, being well rendered, and the soprano solo, "Kathleen Mavourneen," by Miss Jessie Hill, was so well received that she was compelled to respond with "Rosamund." The concert was also a financial success, the net receipts being about $50.

Buys the Campbell Cottage.

Jas. B. Sullivan, the Strong's avenue plumber, has bought from the J. C. Campbell estate the brick cottage and lot at 504 Strong's avenue and expects to occupy his new home about May 1st. The consideration was $2,200. The lot has a frontage of 60 feet, by 120 feet in depth, while the house is comparatively new, having been erected only eight years ago and is supplied with the modern conveniences. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cunneen will move to their other house in the next block north, now occupied by P. J. Schneiss.

Establish Eastern Agency.

The Comee Metallic Packing Co., one of Stevens Point's manufacturing concerns which is rapidly forging to the front, has closed a contract with the Crandall Packing Co. of Palmyra, N. Y., to act as general sales agent for the Comee goods throughout the United States. As the Crandall people have branch houses in many of the large cities and employ 35 traveling men, the local concern expects to increase their output very materially within the next few months. John W. Brown, president of the Comee Co., has received numerous letters from users of the packing, commending it very highly, and all agree that it is the best thing of its kind on the market.

Sells Farm for $11,000.

Eleven thousand dollars for a farm of 160 acres, 40 acres of which is marsh land, may well be considered a good price, but this is the amount received by Nick Eiden, who last week sold his property to Joseph Drifka. The larger tract is located 1 1/2 miles south of Arnott station, in the town of Stockton, and has been occupied by Mr. Eiden for several years. It contains the usual complement of buildings, including a large and well constructed barn. The forty acres of marsh land is in the Buena Vista drainage district. Mr. Drifka formerly resided near Fancher, but sold his farm last year and has since been living in town. Mr. and Mrs. Eiden and their four children will become residents of this city as soon as they can rent a desirable house. Nick still owns another farm adjoining the Moses Finch homestead in the town of Plover, which will remain in charge of a tenant.

DR. HAY ON TUBERCULOSIS

Synopsis of Talk Recently Given by Specialist at Stevens Point
Normal School.

We are privileged to give our readers a brief synopsis of an address delivered a couple of weeks ago before the faculty and students of the Stevens Point Normal. There is much food for thought in the talk by Dr. T. H. Hay, who has made a life study of tuberculosis and is putting his knowledge to practical use at River Pines Sanatorium, just below the city limits.

The fight against tuberculosis has brought out a great deal in the line of a popular knowledge of the subject and a better guarding of the nation's health. This is what the anti-tuberculosis crusade is doing. It is universally conceded that the beginning of such a movement should be in the schools, as the child can be taught far more readily than his elders. It is estimated that after thirty-three the best part of the average man's life is spent; that his capability for work has its climax at this time. Whether or not this be true, the majority of the work of such a crusade as this should be done in the schools. Here should be taught the nature of tuberculosis and the steps necessary for its prevention.

Tuberculosis, along with the vast majority of other diseases, is a germ disease. Germs, it may be explained, are vegetable organisms, only a few of which are known to science. Most of them have not yet been discovered. When these germs enter into the body they cause disease by destroying the natural processes. Tuberculosis, being a germ disease, is also a communicable disease. These germs are very small, being only one ten-thousandth of an inch in length and one fifty-thousandth of an inch in thickness. When the germ enters the body it surrounds itself with a protective coating of wax and fat and thus to a certain extent resists any attack against it. Although the most common form of tuberculosis is that of the lungs, this germ nevertheless can attack any organ of the body. Many cases of hump back or deformed joints are caused by this disease; tuberculosis of the brain is incurable.

The tubercular bacillus is spread by a person who has tuberculosis of the lungs, for in this particular form of the disease, the lung tissue, loaded with germs, is being expectorated. This is the great source of the spread of tuberculosis. Expectoration is not natural. The child under five years of age does not spit. If he does it is largely on account of imitation. Moreover, the female sex do not expectorate. It is, then, mostly a matter of habit, and as such, there is no reason why it cannot be done away with, especially as it is so dangerous to our public health.

The bacillus is not dangerous while in a moist state. But when it lies about until it is dry and is then carried about by the air in a dry state, it may be easily carried into the body through the lungs. In such a case, unless the body is in such good condition that it can withstand the attack of the germ, infection will probably follow. When the bacillus gets into the lung it acts as an irritant, increasing the flow of blood to the heart, and then a tubercle is formed, a small organism about the size of a pin point. These may unite until the whole tubercle is about the size of an egg. When this tubercle breaks down then the dangerous expectoration follows.

The average person has no idea of the amount of space contained in the human lung. This organ contains 725,000,000 air cells, covering about 2,000 square feet of surface. Fifteen hundred square feet of the lungs are covered by the blood vessels. There are about three and one-half pints of blood in the lungs and this supply is renewed about ten thousand times a day. During this time no less than sixty heads of blood pass through the lungs. The work of the air and blood, as is commonly known, is the exchange of gases. The air carries oxygen to the blood, and takes from it the foul gases of the body. It is, of course, important that the structure of the lung be known in order that the individual clearly perceive the results of tuberculosis and its preventatives.

Let us now consider how tuberculosis may be prevented. First of all, and of the utmost importance, let us have anti-spitting ordinances and let them be enforced. In the vast majority of cities which have these ordinances they are entirely disregarded. The next necessity is plenty of fresh air. Our public buildings and schools are deficient in this regard. Most of the ventilating systems are of no value whatever. If you want fresh air, open the windows and turn off the pumps. God Almighty never intended us to breathe the pumped air. Many people believe that night air is not healthy, that it is even dangerous. This is fallacy. Unless you can bottle up the day air and breathe it from a can at night you will certainly have to breathe night air. Furthermore one should have plenty of rest and plenty of exercise.

Exercise is needed to keep up a good circulation and to give an appetite. Rest is necessary in order that the system may not be debilitated; a weakened system can easily be attacked by the tubercular bacillus; a really healthy man need not fear it. Fatigue and tire are the greatest factors in the development of tuberculosis.

The teacher should be and will be one of the greatest aids in the fight against tuberculosis. She should understand what is necessary for the good health of the children in the schools. The school child's larger originates in the home. The baby is born with his sense of taste predominant. Everything naturally gravitates toward his mouth. The bacillus may have been carelessly deposited in the house, on the floor. Is it any wonder that the baby acquires the disease? In school, the child has this same tendency. He spits on his fingers or his handkerchief or even puts them in his mouth and then cleans his own or some one's else slate with them. He lends his neighbor his gum to chew a while, or reflectively chews the end of a borrowed pencil. Perhaps he takes great delight in eating the core of his friend's apple. The teacher should understand the danger of this sort of thing. She should also understand hygiene. She should try and have a visiting physician inspect the school every day or at least as often as possible. She should see that the children are kept clean and wholesome. A story is told of one teacher, who, upon sending a child home because he offended her sense of smell, received the following note from an irate mother:

"Miss I would like to have you know that my Jimmy ain't no rose. Never mind smelling him; learn him!"

The teacher should further insist on adequate ventilation, and should see that the building is kept clean. No building can be kept as it should be by an annual or semi annual cleaning.

The next question is that of food. That is one thing for which, to a certain extent, we are dependent upon others. However, we should try to get proper food, as our lives depend more upon what goes into our mouths than upon what goes out of them. No student should go to school without a good, hearty breakfast. An engineer starts his fires going in the morning with plenty of fresh fuel; we should do the same with our bodies. The pupil should never plead lack of time as a reason for going without breakfast. A man can eat a ten course dinner in eight and one-half minutes. A man who tells you to count one hundred before you swallow a mouthful is crazy and should be sent to the insane asylum. The lower animals do not stop to count one hundred before they swallow. When a dog is given a piece of food he gives one gulp and it is gone; and yet dogs are not commonly troubled with indigestion. The food should not be necessarily bolted, but the student who has to make short work of a meal may safely follow the maxim: Take big bites and take them often.

As to clothing, it should be adjusted to the weather. In winter, the feet especially should be kept warm, as a man can stand a good deal of cold if his feet are only warm, and the heat is being carried up through the rest of the body.

All of these things help to prevent tuberculosis. As to the actual cure of the disease, that has been established without a doubt. People used to think it was absolutely incurable; now some go to the other extreme and claim all cases are curable. There are, however, many cases which are beyond help; some people are doomed even from the start. But as an average thing, speaking from a rational viewpoint, tuberculosis can be cured.

ON A MONTANA RANCH

Former Supervisor of Music in City Schools Writes of Life in the Far West.

The following interesting letter from Mrs. Clarence W. Wulfjen, who will be pleasantly remembered by Stevens Point people as Miss Edith Serven, a former supervisor of music in our city schools, is sent from her ranch home near the Montana-Wyoming border:

Decker, Mont., Mar. 11, 1910.

Editor Gazette:—Although I have been away for several years and was never a resident very long in your city, I still enjoy hearing of the friends I made while there. So when The Gazette comes to me each week I eagerly read it. It is especially enjoyable to me out here on our cattle ranch, where people are few and communication often delayed. We are thirty-four miles from Sheridan, Wyo., and have thus far depended upon horses to carry us back and forth. This spring we shall have an automobile, which will add much to time and pleasure while on the road. Sheridan is a thriving, energetic town of about 10,000 people, and is a center of business for many ranches and farms for miles around.

Ten miles or so northwest of Sheridan there are extensive coal mines which have an output of several thousand tons per day. Coal mining and stock raising are the principal industries of this part of the country.

The climate is generally delightful, though this past winter has been an unusually severe one. But the air is dry, which helps much in very cold weather. The summer days are very warm but the nights are always cool.

We have telephone connection with Sheridan and neighboring ranches, and it is an invaluable convenience and pleasure.

I enjoy my new home very much and send greetings from my many surrounding hills to all who remember me.

Very sincerely,
Edith Serven-Wulfjen.

Sanitary Boarding Houses.

A thorough inspection of all rooming and boarding houses for students at the University of Wisconsin has been begun under the auspices of the hygiene committee of the faculty, to determine fully the sanitary and hygienic condition of each.

This is the first time that the score-card system of regulation of living conditions for students at the university has been applied.

A full report of the ventilation, plumbing, cleanliness, lighting, heating and general surroundings is to be made out by the inspector and kept on file in the office of the committee. Defective conditions found are to be reported to the owner and occupant, and steps will be taken to compel all offering accommodation for students to maintain a reasonable standard of living conditions.

Plover's Fight for the County Seat.

Tenia McCallin '10 Winifred Hamilton '10.

An act authorizing the legal voters of Portage county to vote on the question of the removal of the county seat. The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. At a special election to be called and held in the several towns, cities, villages and election precincts of the county of Portage, on the first day of August, 1868, the legal voters of the county of Portage, shall be and are hereby authorized to vote upon the question of the removal of the county seat of said county from its present location at Plover to the city of Stevens Point, and if a majority of all the votes cast on the question at said election shall be in favor of such removal, then the city of Stevens Point shall be the permanent county seat of said county.

Sec. 5. In case the result of said election shall be in favor of the removal to Stevens Point, the several county officers and the place of holding the circuit court shall not be removed thereto until Stevens Point shall first have placed at the control of the county board the sum of ten thousand dollars to build county buildings at Stevens Point; and it is hereby made the duty of said board of supervisors so soon as the sum of ten thousand dollars shall be placed at their control by Stevens Point, to forthwith proceed to the erection of county buildings at Stevens Point.

Thus ran the report from the legislature which, acted as an electric shock upon the people of Portage county, and more especially those of Plover and vicinity, making them alive to threatening danger. Plover's pride in the fact of its being the county seat was boundless; it was upon this that Plover's life and growth were based; if the county seat were removed, it would be taking away the foundation, leaving the tottering walls. Plover rose in a body with a cry, "It must not be! It shall not be!" And with this as an inspiration, they toiled through the summer preceding August 1, 1868, to impress this upon the voters of Portage county. Through the columns of the "Plover Times" and the Stevens Point "Wisconsin Pinery," this hot contest was waged, and it is in their yellowed files that we have the best source of our knowledge of the fight, so momentous a crisis in the history of Stevens Point and Plover.

The editor of the "Plover Times," evidently, believed that one of the weightiest arguments in Plover's behalf was its location, and it was with this point in view that they opened fire with a lengthy description of the various portions of the county. The northern and western portions, it seems, were but sparsely settled; the substantial part of the population was in the south; such a condition they deemed a portent of still greater difference in the relative development of these regions in the future. Should such be the case, needless to say, the removal of the county seat would work injustice to a large part of the population—an injustice to which the people would not long submit. The fact that Stevens Point had a larger population and did a larger business, was not sufficient reason, they claimed, to move the county seat from a central position to one six miles to the northwest. It was too early to judge. The future development of the agricultural resources of the county, the entrance of railroads, must determine the scene of the activities of the county.

In the first stages of the fight, Plover assumed the guise of an unprejudiced mediator. "We disclaim any hostility to Stevens Point," says the Times. "We do not wish to be among those who rise by pulling others down." Merely to investigate the question as to whether it would be an advantage to have the county seat removed to the Point,—this, ostensibly, was the intention; but we who read the sentiments of the people through the columns of their paper, cannot but perceive the traces of bitterness which can by no means be classed as impartial consideration of the matter. "Standing alone," they say, "it looks like a piece of sublime impudence or blind selfishness for anyone to demand removal."

Was it blind selfishness, sublime impudence? Stevens Point was larger than Plover, did a more extensive business, furnished a larger market for produce; therefore it would be fully as convenient, nay more convenient, for the people in the southern part of the county to be able to transact their private and county business in one trip to the Point.

"Yes," said Plover, "but what assurance have we that the same state of affairs will continue even next year? Without some great public improvement altogether too great for the Point to control, it can never grow another inch. It has already reached the maximum growth. Mosinee and Wausau on the north are now able to supply the upper country, Amherst is making rapid strides toward monopolizing the trade on the east. We are looking for two railroads, now in contemplation, one from Ripon by way of Berlin and one from Green Bay to the Mississippi at Wabasha. The first will pass near enough to Plover to make it a point of trade. The second, if constructed for the shortest route, will go not more than one mile from Plover. The business center of this county will concentrate at some point on the one or the other of these roads. Hence, if the county seat must necessarily be at a business center, we are in great danger of finding that, after having taxed ourselves heavily to build at the Point, our business center will have changed."

Plover's view of Stevens Point, as to the likelihood of its future decline, was, however, not altogether caused by envy. That this state of affairs truly existed is verified by comparing the census of 1868 with that of 1857, which was published in a handbook by General Ellis and J. J. Tracy. A short synopsis of the census as therein stated was as follows: Population short of two thousand; five hundred buildings, two hundred seventy of them dwellings, twenty-three stores; six hotels, ten saloons, various factories and shops; one high school, three public schools, two churches completed, a parochial school in connection with the Episcopal church, a young ladies' academy. Eleven years later, in 1868, Stevens Point had suffered largely. This decline was not to be wondered at. A lumbering supply town is never long lived. The fact that Stevens Point was called into being by the necessities of lumbering interests, for a base of supplies, accounts for its decline and fall. In the days of Stevens Point's highest prosperity, not a mouthful of any kind of supplies was raised above that point. At this time, in 1868, all kinds of grain-trading places had sprung up, enough for their own supplies, thus cutting off Stevens Point's trade in the north and northwest. The Plover Times has said of Stevens Point, "Without additional facilities of trade, future growth is impossible. Neither salt nor the county seat will save it and bring back that prosperity which was begotten of a condition of things that has passed never to return."

Such was Plover's argument against the location of Stevens Point as a good business center for a county seat; but that with which the editors of the Times hoped to touch, even more vitally the voters, was the question of taxes, the question which is still wont to affect men most sensitively. The "Lumberman," another contemporary Stevens Point paper, calculated the cost of erection of new county buildings to within the ten thousand dollars which Stevens Point would have to pay in order to perfect the removal. The Times took emphatic exception to this statement and declared it a wild flight of the imagination to fancy that a new court house and jail which would be worthy of the money spent in building them could be erected for less than forty thousand dollars.

It was in the Times for June 27th that the foregoing bold declaration was made. Henceforth each new issue—we cannot say blazed with headlines, for the journals of those days, strange to say, had no headlines—was alive with heated discussions of that most important topic, taxes. No longer did the paper make the slightest pretense of being unprejudiced in its attitude. It was championing the cause of Plover—Plover must not lose! Boldly it denounced the principles of the citizens of the proposed county seat; graphically it sketched the wonders of the new railroad, destined for the glory of Plover, which was to leave Stevens Point to pine away in sad depopulation and destitution; with fiery invective it assailed a proposition which, it said, would inflict upon the already burdened people a load of taxation too heavy for them to support.

Until the last issue of the Times preceding the vote of August first, was this confident spirit manifest. Then appeared one sheet which held a note of ominous warning—the culmination of all Plover's courageous, desperate struggle. Bravely had the city fought for its heritage; not until almost the end do we detect any foreboding of failure. Mayhap Plover was weary of the strife, and that accounts for the discouragement in the editorial of August first, which is full of the pathos which comes of the almost certain knowledge of defeat—"If the Point is successful, it will be a fraudulent success. The issue will not be dead, but only sleep for a little while. Stevens Point cannot be the county seat for any great length of time—from the nature of things it cannot. We have shown time and again that this is so. Time will justify our prediction if the change today is made."

The change, that day, was made. Those who had, through that summer, struggled on for the very life and breath of Plover, were met by grim defeat. Gone their heritage, unavailing their fight—the defeat seemed to presage utter ruin.

Yet, even while we must feel a warm sympathy and compassion, we, of Stevens Point, in all loyalty to our own city, cannot but feel a thrill of joy that the change, that day, was made, and that time has not yet justified Plover's prediction, and, please God, never shall.

SKIMMILK VALUABLE

Skimmilk is by far the most important byproduct from the dairy and the best adapted to varied and profitable uses. A prominent dairymen says that skimmilk as a human food is unappreciated by most farmers, but it has been tested under various conditions by food experts and has proved a useful portion of an everyday diet for many people. The use of skimmilk ought to be encouraged.

Every dairy should be equipped with a good separator, and farmers would find city markets for a large amount of this valuable byproduct. Skimmilk has all the protein and half of the full value of the whole milk and is in most localities the most economical source of animal protein. The food elements in skimmilk are equal in physiological value to those of meats and are far less expensive.

As an article to substitute for water in the preparation of various dishes as well as for others that are made mainly of milk there is no waste, but a decided gain in food value. In making bread skimmilk will add to the weight and nutritive value of the loaf. Used in place of water, sufficient flour may be saved to pay for the milk and yet produce a loaf of equal weight and of more actual food value.

Milk bread is richer in fatty matter and superior in flesh forming elements, which is scientifically explained as being due to the casein of milk being incorporated with the fibrin of the flour. The sale of skimmilk to bakers and confectioners should be encouraged and is capable of being largely increased. Used in this manner, it may be made to net the consumer a dollar a hundred pounds, or more than a large per cent of the farmers and dairymen realize for their whole milk.

As a food for domestic animals skimmilk occupies the most conspicuous position of any foodstuff, especially as a feed for young and growing animals. It gives the best returns when fed to very young animals, constituting the larger part of their rations. It is next best for animals making rapid growth, but which need other feed than milk, mainly of a carbonaceous nature. Except for very young animals skimmilk gives the best returns when used in combination with other foods, generally grains. No class of live stock will give larger returns for skimmilk than poultry of various kinds.

If a premium were offered for the most rapid gains in pig feeding my opinion would be that some man skilled in feeding skimmilk with other foods would carry off the prize. Skimmilk is rich in bone building and blood making constituents, and when we consider its use for these purposes and also remember its easy digestibility and that by adding a variety it makes other food articles more palatable and assists in their digestion we must hold skimmilk as occupying a high place in the list of foodstuffs available on farms.

Authorities seem to differ as to the merits of sweet and sour milk as a feed for swine. Calves are next in favor as profitable consumers of skimmilk, and some feeders think that they can feed their skimmilk to calves and derive more profit from it than by feeding it to swine, but this depends to a large extent upon the good qualities of the animals being fed.

In feeding skimmilk to calves a cent's worth of oilmeal will take the place of a pound of butter fat that has been removed from the milk. Besides, when the milk is fed warm it is better for the calves than milk that is cold and sour.

A young animal that is fed on skimmilk, with milk feed or grain, may be made to weigh almost as much as one of similar breeding, but fed on whole milk, with the same kind of grain, at one year of age. In feeding skimmilk to calves overfeeding is dangerous and must be avoided. The digestive organs of calves are more easily deranged than those of the pig, and care must be exercised in their feeding. Some calves will take more skimmilk than others, and it is well to study the capacity of each calf and fit the amount of milk to suit each animal.

Some dairymen feed skimmilk to their cows mixed with grain and find it is of more or less value. It has also been fed to lambs, horses and colts with success.

Do Not Exercise In Cold.

The cow that is making from two to three pounds of butter each day should not be turned out in a yard in the cold to exercise, else her butter yield will drop.

Too Costly.

King George II. once wished to add the Green park in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns."

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his triple throne.

Merciful.

Mrs. A.—I do love lobsters, but I never have them at home because it seems so inhuman to kill them by putting them in a kettle of boiling water. Mrs. B.—Gracious! I never kill them that way—it would be too horrible. I always put them on in cold water and let them come to a boil.

Spirit Rock.

A memorial to an explorer is that in honor of Jean Nicolet at Menasha, Wis. It is a huge boulder of Winnebago Manitou stone, known as "spirit rock," and is mounted on a plain pyramid of sandstone twelve feet high. An inscription relates that Nicolet was the first white man in Wisconsin and that he met the Winnebago tribe and held the earliest white council with 5,000 of its braves. The monument was erected by the city of Menasha and women's clubs of that place.

AN EASTER PRESENT

You should make yourself a bank book. It is a luckier possession than the hind feet of a thousand rabbits. For you control and increase your luck every time you make a deposit. Why not start an account at once? This time next year you will be delighted for having done so.

The old proverb says "Opportunity Knocks Once at Every Man's Door." But it profits a man but little if he has not the money to take advantage of it. A dollar here and a dollar there saved, in time makes DOLLARS when you need them.

We are careful in the selection of our investments. Our success is due in a large measure to this fact. It accounts for the prosperous condition of our business and for the security felt by those who entrust their funds to our care.

We pay three per cent. on savings and certificates. You can start a savings account with five dollars back for one dollar or more. A checking account with us would save you money. Why not have a bank account with us? All business confidential.

A Rare Treat in Store.

The Girls' Glee Club of Lawrence College, Appleton, will favor the people of Stevens Point with a concert on Wednesday evening of next week, March 30th. It will take place at St. Paul's M. E. church and all who attend are assured of a musical treat. Following from the Sturgeon Bay Democrat shows how they are appreciated in other places:

The Lawrence College Glee Club gave a fine concert at the Methodist church last Wednesday evening. Notwithstanding the rain, there was a large crowd, and all pronounce the entertainment a rare treat. The young ladies in cap and gown attracted marked attention, their renditions were very pleasing, and they were repeatedly called back for encores. Our citizens are under great obligations for the entertainment, and hope the club may come again.

High School Notes.

Grace Glennon and Frances von Neupert were visitors yesterday.

We have to march without music. The piano is out of order completely.

The High school Senior class play date has been changed from April 15th to Friday evening, April 8th.

Harold Pattee, who withdrew from school last week, left yesterday for his future home in St. Anthony, Idaho.

The second year Latin class have finished the third part of their Caesar and after vacation will start work on book four.

The piano is out of commission. It can't even be used now. Just a little patience, because the board will have to give us a new piano.

The Junior Prom. will be given at the Odd Fellows hall next Tuesday. An entertainment and refreshments will be given at the school.

Thursday noon the boys, several hundred strong, collected on Main street, and under the leadership of Kryger and Weltman, as marshals, marched in soldierly fashion down Clark street to the school. All were decked with green in honor of St. Patrick. On the way out the marshals lead the grand pageant through several military maneuvers.

The belt connecting the motor and the fan broke Friday morning. On account of the poor ventilation the students were dismissed. It is the opinion of some that this free day was given by St. Patrick in return for the honor done him by the street pageant. This is very likely, for as he drove the snakes from Ireland, he could also drive us out of school.

So much has been said already, pro and con, on the game last Friday, that an eye witness wishes to insert the following: The playing of the High school team during part of the first half was not up to their standard. The reason that the Normal scored so many points is not that they played too well, but because the High school did not play as good as they usually do. In the second half the High school team gave a good sample of what they could do. Rosenow threw baskets from all parts of the field. As a whole, the Highs played a great deal better game than the Normals. The best proof of this is the result of the game.

NORMAL NOTES.

Mr. Sims left for Chicago, Tuesday, on a trip in the interest of the school.

At general exercises Tuesday George Everson delivered his oration to the school. George can make a noise like Patrick Henry all right!

Mrs. Nelson A. Week gave a very interesting account of her experiences in the Hawaiian islands to the school, Tuesday afternoon at 1:30.

Last Friday night the Normal basketball team was defeated by the High school team by a score of 25 to 21. As the Normal has previously run away with the High, the game came as a surprise to the students. The Normal did not play up to its usual standard, however, being very poor in basket shooting.

The following rhetorical program will be given at 10:15 Friday morning: Piano Solo.....Evel Paulson

The Children's Theatre in New York...Augusta Miller

The Purpose of Games in the Kindergarten.....Grace Kelly

A game by the kindergarten children Vocal Solo.....Howard Welty

Reading—"The Adventures of the Tar Baby".....Winifred Wysocki

The Value of Stories. Leah Cunningham

A story told to primary children.....Anna Ellingson

A good deal of class spirit is being manifested at the girls' basketball tournament, which is being held this week and next. The first games were played Monday night. The Juniors were beaten by the Freshmen by a score of 16 to 5. The most interesting game of the afternoon was the struggle between the Elements and Seniors, the former winning out in the last few minutes by the score of 19 to 14. Both teams put up a good fast game, the Elements excelling in team work. The Elements are "doped" as winners of the tournament, with the Seniors second.

At a meeting of the Oratorical association, Monday, Paul Carlson and George Batty were elected delegates to the business meeting of the inter-Normal Oratorical League, to be held at Oshkosh Friday, at the time of the inter-Normal contest, at which George Everson will represent the local school. At this meeting Nugent Glennon was elected as the next president of the league, the choice of president going from one school to another and this being Stevens Point's turn. It is expected that a large delegation will accompany Orator Everson to Oshkosh. About 25 have already promised to go down and root for St. P. N., and this number will be greatly augmented by Friday.

The fair and supper given last Saturday at the Normal was a big success and a very comfortable sum will be realized. An excellent supper was served under domestic supervision, being far superior to the usual fair supper. Shows of various kinds are scattered about the building, and Freshman exhibit contained many clever hits on students and faculty. The animal show, transported over to African jungles. The Den of Horrors, presided over by a really "dread" devil, was a great thrill. The beauty show in the gym was praised by all. The gym was filled with shows and booths of various kinds, the most prominent being the one in the gymnasium.

Mrs. H. L. Bannister came over from Dunn county last week to visit a few days with her husband and attend the Union band concert. She and the children have been on their farm near Boyceville since last fall.

Albert Hubbard has bought two hacks from C. A. Cooper and will in future run the night line heretofore conducted by the latter gentleman. Albert's headquarters are located at the corner of Division and Monroe streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schroeder of North Fond du Lac are the proud parents of their first born, a boy, which arrived at their home St. Patrick's day, the 17th. Mrs. Schroeder was formerly Miss Edwina Berndt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Berndt of this city.

Will Organize a Camp.

J. F. Smith, state commander of the Sons of Veterans, will visit Stevens Point tomorrow, and in the evening, at G. A. R. headquarters, in the basement of the court house, will organize a camp. All who signed application blanks for membership on his previous visit, as well as all others who are eligible to membership, are requested to be present.

Woodman, Spare the Axe.

About 100,000 feet of white pine logs were recently cut on the S. A. Sherman estate lands, in the town of Plover, between the two paper mills, the standing timber having been purchased by John Porter, assessor of that town. Most of the logs were brought to the Mitchell mill in this city on sleighs before the snow disappeared, and the balance will come by rail. Mr. Porter says that no logs have been cut immediately adjoining the highway between the two paper mills on either side, and as the paper mill companies, through whose lands a part of the road also runs, have promised that the timber will be preserved on their property, Mr. Porter is desirous of having arrangements made so that this delightful summer drive will not be destroyed by a further encroachment on the part of loggers and lumbermen.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

To the Voters of Stevens Point:—Gentlemen: As heretofore announced through the public press, I am a candidate for the office of comptroller, which office is to be filled by election on the 5th of April next. I understand that a statement has been quite extensively circulated that I had been induced to enter this race in the interest of a certain other candidate for said office. Now in all fairness to such other candidate, and in justice to myself and my friends I wish to say that any such statement is untrue. I am in this race to win if I can and to that end I most respectfully solicit the support of all voters, irrespective of party or creed, and if I should win I promise to devote the best of my ability and my entire time and attention to the duties of said office. Most respectfully yours, J. E. Rogers.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO EAST SIDE LADIES DIE

Articles and Items of News that Appeared in the Columns of The Gazette, Quarter of a Century Ago Today.

Hubbard Moss and Mrs. Lydia Dasher were married at Plover last week. Nick Gross had the misfortune to sprain one of his ankles a few days ago.

Miss Kate Schlegel, who has been teaching at Wausau, returned to the city last week, having resigned her position.

Mrs. J. Moylan and daughter, Miss Mollie, are visiting at Merrill. Another daughter, Miss Julia, is teaching school a short distance above that city.

John E. Welch and John Higgins have devoted their time during the past winter to putting in timber from a piece of land up the Plover. They succeeded in getting in 200,000 feet.

Benj. Burr spent a few days in Milwaukee last week visiting his son, Emmons, who is taking medical treatment for an ear trouble. The latter will be able to return home in a few days.

The Green Bay road has passed into the hands of the holders of its bonds and the former manager has retired, turning over all the property to Gavin Campbell, who assumes the general management as representative of the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., the first mortgage bond holders.

John Redfield is putting in about 1,500,000 feet of logs at his mill near Knowlton, where he owns a large quantity of standing timber. John was one of the last persons above this city to use the old Wisconsin to get his lumber to market, but he also has forsaken it and now ships by rail exclusively.

The most destructive fire that our city has experienced in over eleven years occurred last Tuesday morning at about 1 o'clock. Policeman Dunegan discovered the fire in the rear of the saloon of Boyer & Ceisinski, on the south side of Main street, between Second and Third streets. He immediately gave the alarm and within ten minutes the steam fire company was on the ground, but owing to the muddy condition of the water in the reservoir on public square, where the steamer had been placed, only one stream could be made to play upon the burning building and the row of one story wooden buildings on either side of the place where the fire originated proved a mere firetrap, and in rapid succession six buildings on Main street and one on public square were leveled to the ground. Three of these buildings were the property of Robt. Nesbitt and occupied by Frank Kitowski as a tailor shop, Slothower & Hamacker as dry goods and grocery store, and J. O. Wiswall as a saloon; another building was owned and occupied by Michael Neuman as a saloon; Geo. W. Hungerford owned the next building, occupying part of it himself as a real estate office and renting the balance to Mike Cassidy as a saloon, while the second floor was occupied by J. A. Felch as a law office and by Jas. B. Carpenter, justice of the peace; the other building was the saloon of Oleson & Beck. The stone structure of W. W. Mitchell, occupied by I. Brill's Son dry goods store, proved a wall of defense, but the fire at one time got under the sidewalk in front and into the basement of this building, and it was only by diligent work that untold damage was averted.

About this time a strong wind from the northwest blew the flames to the two wooden buildings in the rear of Brill's store, facing Third street, and occupied by A. P. Eckern as a saloon and Tom Bronson as a shoe shop. The hook and ladder company tore these buildings partly down and the vacant lot between Bronson's shop and Dempke's bakery added very materially in checking the progress of the fire in that direction.

Weather Signals.

Postmaster Frost has caused to be erected above the postoffice building a flag pole, from which will be displayed weather signals. The flags to be used are five in number and indicate weather conditions as follows:

- No. 1, a square white flag, fair weather, stationary temperature.
- No. 2, square blue flag, rain or snow, stationary temperature.
- No. 3, white and blue flag, local rain or snow, stationary temperature.
- No. 4, pennant shaped flag, used only in connection with the other signals.
- No. 5, white flag with black square in center, indicates cold wave.
- No. 4 is used with the first three mentioned signals as follows:
No. 1, with No. 4 above it, indicates fair weather, warmer.
No. 1, with No. 4 below it, indicates fair weather, colder.
No. 2, with No. 4 above it, indicates rain or snow, warmer.
No. 2, with No. 4 below it, indicates rain or snow, colder.
No. 3, with No. 4 above it, indicates local rain or snow, warmer.
No. 3, with No. 4 below it, indicates local rain or snow, colder.

STEVENS POINT, WIS.
Call 501 Main Street

Mrs. Martin Gabler and Mrs. Sophronia Elliott Called, After Long and Patient Suffering.

MRS. MARTIN GABLER.
Mrs. Martin Gabler, a resident of this city during the last quarter of a century, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Schepp, 626 Michigan avenue, with whom she had resided for the past ten years, at 4:30 o'clock last Sunday afternoon, after an illness of several weeks with dropsy and other complications.

The deceased was born at St. John's Austria-Hungary, Aug. 12, 1830, and was therefore nearly 80 years of age. Her maiden name was Clara Muellner, and she was married in her native land to Martin Gabler, they coming to Stevens Point with their family in 1885. About three years later the husband was killed in the local Soo yards by being run down by a locomotive. Four children survive, Martin Gabler of Fond du Lac, Mrs. Paul Schepp of this city, Mrs. Clara Griegler of St. Paul and Jos. Gabler of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Gabler is the third lady whose birthplace was in Austria-Hungary to pass away in her immediate neighborhood during the past couple of weeks, and her departure is the culmination of a long, useful christian life.

The funeral took place from St. Joseph's Catholic church, of which she had been a consistent member during her residence in Stevens Point, at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, Rev. H. J. Ehr officiating, followed by interment in the parish cemetery. The members of St. Anne's society were present in a body, and the last rites were largely attended, all the children of the deceased being present to pay their last respects to a good, kind mother, as was also the son-in-law, Mr. Griegler, of St. Paul. The pallbearers were Michael Huber, John Hantinger, Martin Neuberger, John Brantner, John Haidinger and Jos. Fluecke.

MRS. BENJAMIN ELLIOTT.

After a long and most painful illness with an internal cancer, Mrs. Sophronia Elliott passed away at her home, 422 Dixon street, at 10:15 last Thursday evening. Her condition had been most serious for four or five months before her demise.

Sophronia Chute was born at South Casco, Maine, March 27, 1843, and was therefore nearly 67 years of age. She was married at Lowell, Mass., in 1861, to Seth H. Parmeter and they came to Stevens Point three years later. This had been her home ever since with the exception of a few years spent on a farm in Stockton and later in North Dakota. In 1902 she was married to Benjamin Elliott, who has been an invalid for some years, and is living with a son in Minnesota. Two children survive her. They are Elmer Parmeter, of Fargo, N. D., who had been here with his family for the past month, and Mrs. Mabel Douglas, of San Bernardino, Cal., who had been here for the past ten months, being accompanied by her husband and son. She also leaves three sisters and a brother, Mrs. Emily Mosnier and John Chute of South Casco, Me., and Mrs. O. H. Cooper of Hinsdale, N. H.

Important Census Information.

On the seventh and eighth pages of The Gazette today appear lengthy and instructive articles relative to the taking of the coming national census, work upon which will be commenced in every ward, town and village throughout the country on the 15th of April. These articles are illustrated, including pictures of Director E. Dana Durand, LeGrand Powers, head of the agricultural division, and Wm. M. Stewart, head of the manufacturers' division, and should be read by all. There are no doubt some people who feel that the census returns and giving information relative to the amount of property, both personal and real, that they own, may in some way effect their taxes, but why anyone should think this way is hard to see. The more complete the returns that can be secured in this county, both in regard to agriculture and manufacturing, the better it will show up for the county, and it is urged that farmers especially be prepared in advance to give the census enumerators correct statistics. Understatements are injurious to the communities where they prevail and are against the interests of property owners in general. By a careful reading of the articles above referred to, much information can be secured and it is hoped that no one will fail to read them.

Opens New Through Line.

A dispatch from Superior says that next month through train service will be inaugurated between the Twin Ports and Chicago over the Soo line. Elaborate preparations are now under way for the opening of the line, for heavy passenger traffic. It is the intention to run two trains over the line each way daily and make a strong bid for the immigrant business which is always heavy during the spring and early summer. The distance to Chicago over the Soo line at present is 477 miles, as compared to 470 miles over the Omaha and Northwestern.

The Money Declined.

A Chicago advertising agency, a few days ago, sent The Gazette a check to pay in advance for the insertion of an advertisement for a mail order house, that is desirous of having its spring catalogue of general merchandise spread broadcast, free to all who apply. Newspaper publishers are not accustomed to refusing the good old coin of the realm when tendered them, whether it comes in the form of a negotiable check or the filthy lucre, but an exception is made in a case like this. The Gazette believes in protecting its home merchants, manufacturers and people generally and believes its efforts are appreciated by a good many at least.

There is every indication that pleasant weather will continue, although it would be unusual if we escape without one or more snow storms.

THE THIRTEENTH GENERAL CENSUS

Uncle Sam About to Ask Questions of His Family.

TO GET AT THE ACTUAL FACTS

Taking the Decennial Census a Tremendous Undertaking and a Colossal Expense, but Necessary to the Proper Conduct of Our Vast Domain.

OLD Dr. U. S. Census will begin making his thirteenth diagnosis of the condition of Uncle Sam and his family April 15 next. He made the first in 1790 and has been repeating it every ten years since. Uncle Sam has footed the bills, to date amounting to about $47,000,000. Our venerable dad has calculated that the thirteenth investigation will cost about $12,000,000, so that when old Dr. U. S. Census finishes his current work there will have been spent about $60,000,000 for this purpose since 1790. The twelfth census cost about $13,000,000, and as Uncle Sam's landed possessions have increased since then and his family gained about 15,000,000 more members than belonged to it in 1900 it would be considered no more than fair if the present diagnosis were to call for the spending of about $19,000,000, which would be the sum if the rate of increase of expense at each census up to the twelfth were to be maintained for the thirteenth.

A census expert has estimated that of the $13,000,000 the headquarters office force will earn $1,500,000, the enumerators $4,500,000, the supervisors $910,000 and the special agents $700,
000. The administrative cost will be $200,000, the stationery $200,000, rent $125,000, tabulating machines $250,000, cards for tabulation processes $100,000,
printing $800,000, Alaska $85,000, Porto Rico $100,000, total, $12,730,000.

If that is all the expense it is cheap. The late General Francis A. Walker, who was a census authority greater than any other, living or dead, once wrote that "the people of the United States can well afford to pay for the very best census they can get." He penned this in connection with a frank confession of his own shortsightedness in underestimating the cost of the tenth census.

It's the old story—when you are ill get the best doctor you can afford.

The comparative cheapness with which the thirteenth census will be taken will be largely due to Director E. Dana Durand's economical methods, to the introduction of semiauto-matic electrical card punching, tabulating and sorting machines and to the inheritance of wisdom from the experience gained by the permanent census bureau.

Modern Methods For Accuracy.

Mr. Durand is responsible for many of the new methods to increase statistical accuracy at every step of the census taking and to decrease the per capita cost of the enumeration. The card punching, tabulating and sorting machinery is the invention of a census mechanical expert, and the patent rights belong to Uncle Sam. The machines are novel in plan and design, are of greater speed and efficiency than those they superseded and can be built and operated at a large saving of money as compared with previous expenditures for this purpose.

Other money saving features are the elimination of the vital statistics inquiry from the work of the decennial census, as it belongs to the permanent branch of the United States census;
the reduction in the number of schedules, the piece price method of paying for machine work, the omission of the hand, household and neighborhood industries from the manufactures branch of the census and the reduction of the size and number of copies of the final reports.

The larger part of the $13,000,000
will be expended in the fiscal year which began July 1 last and ends June 30, 1910, the first of the three years within which time the twelfth census must be over, the temporary clerks and special agents discharged and the permanent census bureau with its office force of 700 clerks again performing its annual intercessional functions. Fully half of the total to be expended will be Washington's share,

and the remainder will be distributed
all over the country.
Congress has limited the thirteenth census to four general subjects: population, agriculture, manufactures and mines and quarries. The director is authorized to determine the form and subdivision of inquiries. The inquiry as to population relates to April 15, 1910; that as to agriculture concerns the farm operations during 1909 and calls for an inventory of farm equipment April 15, 1910; that relative to manufactures and mines and quarries is for 1909.

An Army to Get the Facts.

The enumerators will carry only the population and agriculture schedules April 15, 1910. Special agents will be sent out with the schedules for the manufactures, mines and quarries data. There will be fully 65,000 enumerators, of whom about 45,000 will carry both the population and agriculture schedules, as it is estimated that there are now fully 7,000,000 separate farms in America, with farmers numbering well up into a score of millions. In 1900 there were many more billions of dollars of fixed capital invested in agriculture than there were in manufactures, strange as it may seem. And the farmer is getting better off all the time; his mortgage indebtedness is decreasing fast, his taxation is small as compared with the urbanite's burden, and he has taken to automobile riding on a large scale.

This is the heyday of the farmer, and old Dr. U. S. Census is going to diagnose him pretty carefully for fear that with ease comes evil—that is, the neglect of those essentials which have made his prosperity possible.

Census taking every ten years is a tremendous task. It is the greatest single operation undertaken by Uncle Sam with the exception of the Panama canal work and the assembling of an army in time of war. The American census is the largest, costliest and most accurate of any taken by the civilized nations. Its methods are the most modern and its equipment the most complete. The census bureau force comprises, first, Director E. Dana Durand of Michigan, who, although only thirty-eight years old, is older than most of the generals commanding the forces in the civil war and who is, too,
a statistically scarred hero, a veteran in government service and likely to prove the most practical and efficient director connected with any of the past censuses. Then there is the assistant director, William F. Willoughby of Washington, former secretary of state of Porto Rico. Next in rank are the five chief statisticians—William C.
Hunt, in charge of the population division; Le Grand Powers, heading the agricultural division; William M. Steuart, overseeing the manufactures division; Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, the vital statistics work, and Dr. Joseph Adna Hill, the division of revision and results. Charles S. Sloane is the geographer, Albertus H. Baldwin is the chief clerk, Voler V. Viles is chief of the publication division, Hugh M. Brown is private secretary to the director, Robert M. Pindell, Jr., is the appointment clerk, George Johannes is the disbarring officer, and C. W. Spicer is the mechanical expert. In addition to these are the chiefs of the divisions under the chief statisticians.

There are about 750 permanent clerks, and there will be 2,000 temporary clerks, etc. The supervisors will number 330, and they will employ and direct the 65,000 enumerators. Twenty expert special agents will exercise an advisory function. There will be about 1,000 chief special agents and assistant special agents. The supervisors will also probably employ 1,000 clerks, 500
special agents and 4,000 interpreters.

Tabulating the Returns.

The preparation of the schedules for the tabulating process will begin as soon as they are forwarded by the supervisors. The data on them relating to population will be transferred to manila cards by the punching of holes in them to correspond with the different items in the schedules. An electrical machine controlled by a clerk can punch holes in 3,000 cards a day.
There will be 300 of these, and 40-
000,000 cards have been ordered.

After the punching the cards are hand fed into an electric tabulating machine with a "pin box" attachment.

CENSUS TABULATING MACHINE.

which permits the required pins to pass through the variously placed holes in the cards, in this way establishing an electric circuit, resulting in the tabulation of the items on counters which register their results in printing on spooled paper somewhat like a stock ticker. There will be a hundred of these machines. After certain comparisons to prove accuracy the schedules are permanently preserved in a great iron safe in the census bureau.
As the card does not contain the name of the person for whom it stands, all personal identity is eliminated from the cards. All danger of misuse of such information disappears. Severe penalties are provided in case any employee discloses census information to outsiders. The next step is the making of the maps and tables to accompany the analyses and then finally the issue of the printed bulletins and reports. Before July 1, 1912, the work must be over and the thirteenth census gone to join its scientific ancestors.

are liver and bowels sometimes seem nervousness, constipation, headache.

But such trouble fly before Dr.

F. F. Kirsling, who has occupied the Neseman blacksmith shop on Normal avenue during the past year, is now located in the building formerly used as a creamery, on the opposite side of the street, corner of Normal avenue and First street. It has been equipped with two brick forges and otherwise fitted up for its present use, making an ideal shop. Mr. Kirsling will be pleased to have all his old customers, as well as new ones, remember his new location, and the fact that he is always prepared to do first-class work in horseshoeing and blacksmithing. Telephone

A CHEMIST'S OPINION ON SKIN DISEASES.

H. D. McCulloch Co., chemists and druggists, say that in all their scientific and business experience have they never found any remedy so successful as ZEMO for the treatment of eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, blackheads, pimples, and all diseases of the skin and scalp. They say that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A wonderful improvement over the old greasy salves and lotions which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that cause the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. The McCulloch Co.
will gladly supply those who call, with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

It appears from Philadelphia's experience that the price of venality and greed on the one hand and stupidity and indifference on the other hand has not gone down.

of a volcano excites relief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their great cure. Even the worst boils, or sores or fever sores

SKIN DISEASES READILY CURED BY A SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT

Persons who are suffering from blackheads, pimples, dandruff, eczema, tetter, ringworm, or any form of skin disease, often ask the question, "is there a cure?"

The H. D. McCulloch Co. say "yes, there is a cure." ZEMO, a scientific, clean, liquid preparation for external use, gives prompt relief and permanently cures every form of skin and scalp disease. ZEMO draws the germ life and poisons from underneath the skin to the surface and destroys them and in this way affects a complete cure
of any form of skin or scalp disease,
whether on infants or grown persons.
The McCulloch Co. will show you proof of many remarkable cures made by ZEMO and will gladly explain to you how you can be cured by this clean, simple home treatment.

Rev. G. A. Schemmer, of Custer, celebrated mass here last Saturday, and in the afternoon, in company with Geo. W. Allen, called at the home of Aug. Oesterle.
John Wysocki had the misfortune to lose the house on his farm near Polonia by fire, last week. The tenant lost everything, there being no insurance on the household goods. The house was insured for $150 and was worth about $500. Mr. Wysocki is going to move the Ellis blacksmith shop there and make a dwelling of it.
Geo. W. Allen, who has gone into the insurance business in Stevens Point, was home over Sunday. While here he secured options on five of the best farms in the town of Sharon, which are for sale by him at reasonable prices. The farms in size range from 55 to 200 acres. Anyone wishing a good deal in real estate will make no mistake in calling on him at W. B. Buckingham's office.

The Easter dance at Feit's hall, Monday night, March 28th, promises to be a very social affair. Good music will surely be in evidence.
The meadow lark, robin and all the aristocratic spring birds have come all dressed in their bright Easter coats and bonny attire, with notes as sweet as ever.

While real estate seems quiet, so far as sales are concerned, yet the farmer is already busy agitating its manipulation, ready for the sowing of early seed.

A number of friends and neighbors were entertained at the home of Mrs. G. E. Burk at an old-fashioned quilting bee, last Wednesday.
Nearly all the male residents of this section spent last Thursday in Stevens Point, going down more especially to attend the monthly stock fair. Most of the chores had to be done by women members of the various households.
Five weeks more school in district No. 2 and then the children will be dismissed for a vacation of four months. During such an extended vacation the little ones are apt to forget most, if not all that they had learned in the term now coming to a close. A majority of people in this vicinity seem to have an idea that seven or eight months school each year is plenty, but we are of the opinion that small children might better be at work in the school room than running around and getting into mischief.

Her One Wish.

The wandering peddler stopped at the southern cabin and opened his pack.

Recognizes Its Superiority.

A dispatch to Tuesday's Milwaukee Sentinel from Wausau announces that the Curtis & Yale Co., the big manufacturers of sash and doors in that city, had installed two engines of 300 horsepower each to replace one of smaller power. In this connection we are pleased to note that the packing used in the engines was furnished by the Comee Metallic Packing Co. of this city. The Curtis people had given the Comee packing a thorough test and are convinced of its superiority over all others.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, adventurer, a Massachusetts man, who, being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was disappointed by Chile as an insurance agent and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens learned the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her. Admiral of the Peruvian navy confronted Stephens, told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. It only the Antarctic in and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare his plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1753. He had found it frozen in a huge case of ice on an island and contained much gold.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

The change in the man speaking held me breathless; his cant, his usually oily method of utterance had merged into an earnestness full of fascination.

"Well, that was about all, sir," his voice sinking back into commonplace. "In two hours we were out of sight, an' feelin' our way through a blinding snow squall. But it was such a rum thing, discoverin' them islands out there all uncharted, with that queer ghost ship perchin' on 'em, that I wrote down the latitude an' longitude an' the hooker's name in my log-book. We was about three weeks makin' the West Falklands, where I shipped a few more hands, an' then bore away north for home."

He drew a plug of tobacco from out his coat-tail pocket, cut off what he needed, and stowed it away in his cheek. He ran his fingers through his thin hair, and resumed:

"About 18 months later I was back with the ol' Betsy in the South Pacific. One night, with the moon shinin', hardly a ripple anywhere, my mate run her nose onto a rock, a couple o' hundred miles south o' Easter island, an' in less than 20 minutes the bark had gone down like a stone. We made Easter island in the boats without much trouble, but it wasn't so easy to get away. I had six weeks of it before I got a chance, an' then I shipped afore the mast on a sandal-wood trader. De Nova here was mate, an' finally, huntin' goods to peddle among the islanders, we sailed into Valparaiso, an' the most of us shipped out. Well, by that time I wasn't thinkin' very often about that ice-ship down in the Antarctic; I was huntin' for some sort o' berth to take me back to the States. But one night, down in Rodriguez' back room, where I hung out, I got to talkin' with a gambler named Francisco—the same smooth duck who introduced himself as De Castillo to you, sir. He was an educated man, an' seemed to like to hear me talk, an' among other sea yarns I happened to tell him this one. He seemed mighty interested, although he wasn't never given to seafaring, an' asked me a whole pile o' fool questions. Finally he wanted to meet me again alone the next day.

"Well, havin' nothin' better to do, I was there when he came, an' he showed up with a queer-lookin', big ol' book, the cover half ripped off, under his arm. Then he made me tell him that yarn over again, and describe the ship just exactly as I remembered it. Then, when I'd got through an' told him everything I could dig out o' my memory, he opened up that book o' his on the table, an' damme, sir, if he didn't show me a picture of that same ol' hooker, plain as life, only everything was trim an' shipshape on board, with the masts up an' the sails drawin'. The name was printed underneath, too—Donna Isabel, Cadiz.

"That book he showed me was printed in Spanish—not just like what you see to-day, sir, but the letterin' all rough, as though it had been cut out of wood, but the fellow showed me the date when it was printed, an' it read 'Seville, 1779,' plain enough. Francisco wrote out in English what he said was printed there about this Donna Isabel; an' there it is, sir, in his own handwritin'."

He took the paper out of his inner coat pocket and spread it open on the table before us. De Nova and Anderson leaned forward eagerly to look at it, but Tuttle shoved it along toward me.

"Read it out loud, sir," he said, his voice trembling. The writing was not clear, and I held it up to the light.

"Galleon Donna Isabel, ship-rigged, 950 tons, Amador, Master, built 1730, home port Cadiz. Sailed Guayaquil for Valencia, June 11, 1753; crew numbered 32, passengers 17, including five women; carried treasure, in gold ingots and pieces of eight, valued at 3,000,000 pesos, consigned by Candamo, presidente, to department of the west, receipted for by Salvatore, government agent. Spoken by ship Conquistador, Sanchez, master, July 16, 1753, 89 degrees 20 minutes west and 47 degrees 15 minutes south; all well. Lost at sea; no report."

I put down the paper, and looked across at Tuttle; he sat motionless, his head in his hands. I confess the tale had affected me strangely, and I could not doubt that the man honestly believed every word he had uttered. Yet it was far too marvelous ever to be true; too impossible; too wildly romantic. It must have been a hallucination, an optical illusion born from a mirage of fog and sun in those frozen seas. Over 3,000,000 pesos, locked within the eternal ice for 126 years! Over 3,000,000 pesos, guarded by the dead for a century amid that grim desolation of crested sea! God! it was simply unthinkable, and I even ventured to smile at the credulity of the men about me; yet I did it with set jaws and lips parched and dry. What if it was all true? I felt the blood boiling up through my veins, every extremity tingling with the fever of it. Over 3,000,000 pesos! Merciful mother! it was the ransom of a king; it was the temptation of hell! I know not how I controlled my voice so as to question calmly, for, even as I first spoke, I noticed how my hands trembled where they rested on the outspread map.

He Drove His Sheath Knife Half to the Hilt into the Table.

He Drove His Sheath Knife Half to the Hilt into the Table.

"Is that all?"

Tuttle nodded his head, uplifting his eyes questioning to mine.

"That's the whole of it, sir. What do you think?"

"That's more than I know, Mr. Tuttle. Perhaps you dreamed, perhaps Francisco lied. I should have liked to see that book."

I bent lower over the chart, staring at the red cross.

"What was it you men wanted me for?"

"To operate the steamer, sir; the rest of us aboard only understand sailin' vessels."

"Yes, of course; but why did you happen to choose a steamer for the job? There were plenty of sailing craft lying in the harbor easier to steal than this yacht."

"Very true, but it happened to be steam power we wanted. Here is about how we figured it, sir. First place, we had to get away quickly out of those portions of the sea where they'd be most likely to hunt for us. We're outlaws, an' every ship sailin' under a flag is an enemy. Well, sir, what chance would a sailin' vessel have in such a chase? We needed somethin' that would show 'em a clean pair o' heels—somethin' that would give 'em a run for their money. That's what this yacht can do; she's pokin' it now at sixteen."

"Yes; you've got the advantage," I confessed, "so long as your coal lasts. But you can't put in anywhere for a new supply—what then?"

He turned partially about, and winked at De Nova; the fellow grinned back at him, but burst in eagerly:

"Oh, we're not quite so green as all zat, Mons. Stephens, an' I tink we got zis t'ing plan' out jus' 'bout right. We steam so till we get maybe far 'nough south were zey quit look for us. How it be 130 degrees west an' 40 degrees south? Nobody tink we go zere—non, non. We got coal plenty for zat, an' zen have bunch left. I know; I try it. No more need push her elzer after we leave ze Fernandez—we be well ahead zen. Zen we rig up ze schooner sails, an' make ze next 'ousan' mile wizout burn' a pound. You see how it do? Ze danjaire was not, for in zat ocean we meet nussing but maybe ze whale ship."

"You understand what he means, sir?" went on Tuttle, as the creole paused for breath. "Once well ahead we can fall back on canvas, and save the coal. But we'll need the steam power down there to hold her off an' on by the island while we do the job. It's a mighty nasty bit o' water, an' a sailin' vessel is apt to get pinched in the ice. But with a steamer we can hold her to it, however the wind blows."

I looked at the fellow with greater respect. Evidently he had considered every angle of the desperate game he was playing.

"Your scheme certainly sounds reasonable enough," I admitted, almost reluctantly. "And the chances are you will get there all right. But suppose you do; suppose you discover this mysterious island; suppose you find there the galleon as you say; suppose you even succeed in getting aboard, and into possession of the treasure—what then? Don't you know you're bound to be caught the minute you come out of the Antarctic into any ocean patrolled by the fleets of the world? You have committed piracy—a crime against the nations—and the civilized world will unite to hunt you down."

"That's another reason why we had to have a steamer," he explained, calmly. "You just remarked that they'd be lookin' for the Sea Queen to come back. Well, let 'em look; they won't never see her, sir. Once we get that gold under hatches, an' back as far as that rock they call Dougherty island—an' that's only a run o' maybe 500 miles—I'll engage to make over this here Sea Queen so that her own captain wouldn't know her 50 feet away. How? I'd strip the engines out o' her, h'ist the stack overboard, tear down the bridge an' wheelhouse, rig her as a barkentine, change every line o' paint fore an' aft, an' then wreck her somewhere along the east Patagonian coast, or maybe the Falklands. It would be nothin' but a bloomin' whaler gone ashore, an' afore anybody finds out different, we'll be scattered to hell an' back."

I was obliged to acknowledge to myself that it was not an impossible plan. Eliminating the chance of accident or some unusually bad luck, success appeared not only possible, but probable.

"Did you think all that out yourself, Mr. Tuttle?"

"Well, Francisco suggested considerable, but we did it together."

"Where is he? on board?"

The mate laughed, his eyes expressive of contempt.

"Not much, he hadn't the nerve. He's a schemer all right, but a blame coward."

"But suppose he gets to talking back there in Valparaiso?"

It was big Bill Anderson who answered me, disgusted with our long controversy.

"Oh, to hell wid Francisco!" he broke in, gruffly. "It's wat you'd goin' to do we want to know. Francisco'll hold his gaff well enough. He expects a bit of the swag, an', besides, I let him know what was comin' to him if he let his tongue wag. I had him right, let me tell ye. An', damme, Mr. Stephens, the bully in him breaking all bounds, 'if it ain't comin' the same way to any other duffer who goes back on us this trip. That's what talks!" He jerked his sheath-knife from his belt, and, with one fierce lunge, drove it half to the hilt into the table, his brute eyes scowling threateningly into mine.

CHAPTER XI.

In Which I Explain to Her Ladyship. I gazed directly into his bullying eyes with a depth of contempt I made no slightest effort to disguise. Then I arose deliberately to my feet.

"Anderson, pluck that knife out and put it back in your belt."

"I'm damned if—"

"Do as I say quick, you surly brute," I interrupted, sternly. "Not another word. I'm in command here yet, and you'll obey orders, or I'll make you."

He understood I meant it, with his innate cowardice plainly apparent, yet did not yield until Tuttle interfered with a sarcastic laugh.

"The captain isn't exactly the sort to be handled in that kind o' way, Bill," he said, smoothly. "He's a deep-water sailor, not a land-shark, but I guess he's likely ready enough by this time to say what he's willin' to do."

The entire situation seemed to unravel before me like a panorama as I stood there, hastily making up my mind for action. I was afloat on the high seas, absolutely powerless to resist the set purpose of these men surrounding me, all rendered desperate by greed. Much as I despised Anderson, I comprehended that his threat was no idle one, nor did I possess a single comrade on board who would stand at my back. I was utterly alone; nay, worse even than alone—with two women dependent upon me. If I outwitted these rascals, and thus retained semblance of command over them, I might possibly preserve all our lives; I could, at least for the present, protect the women from insult, perhaps from danger.

"Well, Mr. Tuttle," I said, quietly, "I say as well return you my answer one time as another. I don't give ainker's damn for Anderson's threats, and I don't altogether put much faith in your yarn. But perhaps it's worth taking a chance at. What is to be my authority on board, providing I agree to go with you?"

"You're the captain."

"Absolutely in command?"

He shifted about, appearing a trifle disconcerted under my rapid questioning.

"Well, yes; in everything concernin' the discipline an' sailin' of the yacht," he explained. "There won't be no fuss about that job, sir. But we ain't a regular article crew, bein' that we're all here on shares in the enterprise, an' so, as regards the purpose of the voyage, it'll have to be decided by majority vote. However, that don't need make no trouble."

"What is to be my share if you find the treasure?"

He thrust his head out of the window nearest him, looking up and down the deck; then he leaned across the table toward me, lowering his voice until it was little more than whisper.

"You get one-fifth, sir; the four of us here get one-fifth each; the other fifth is to be divided among the crew. Ain't that fair enough, sir?"

"It would appear so; yet there is still another matter of some importance to be decided first. There are two women on board; how about them?"

"What!" The vibrant excitement of his high-pitched nasal voice was echoed by the others.

"This steam-yacht we have stolen was the property of the earl of Darlington," I explained. "Lady Darlington and her maid are still on board, in the cabin aft."

Declaring that the administration railroad bill contained a joker in the provision preventing consolidation of competing lines, Senator Cummins of Iowa made another attack on the rate bill. He expressed the hope that the party would show that it has "the sense and the discipline" to meet its responsibilities.

Peace in the Chicago railroad world was given additional impetus when the dispute between the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the roads was adjusted by the state board of arbitration. # BERMUDA—the HOME OF THE EASTER LILY

BY WALDON FAWCETT

NOW that American tourists, in search of the novel and picturesque, have taken to journeying in great numbers to all parts of the West Indies and other islands off our Atlantic coast, beautiful Bermuda is rightfully coming in for a greater share of attention. The only wonder is that these dream islands, where frost and snow are unknown have not been the mecca in the past of a greater proportion of Yankee pleasure lovers who each winter and spring seek more kindly climes than are to be found in the northern and western portions of the United States. A hospitable domain, where the temperature never goes below 60 degrees or above 75 degrees and which is only 48 hours' sail from New York, may naturally be expected to claim no meager share of attention from travel loving Americans—particularly that large portion of us who enjoy a complete change of scene and manners and customs, even though we cannot (by reason of time and expense) journey far to find them. These coral islands in mid-ocean may be very delightful at almost any season of the year, but the particularly auspicious season in which to visit Bermuda is in the lily season, just as Japan may be seen at its best in cherry blossom time. Bermuda's chief claims before the world are as the home of the Easter lily and the onion and right royally does she merit prestige in both directions. However, the reader need conjure up no mind picture of an atmosphere laden with the odors of the strong-scented vegetable. In Bermuda, in lily time, at least, the delicious, pungent odor exhaled by millions of the white, bell-shaped flowers dominates every nook and corner of the land. The only rivals of the lilies in floral splendor are the oleanders, which grow in hedges to twice the height of a man, and while the flaming tints of these latter flowers challenge the eye they have no fragrance and so leave the lilies undisputed in their pre-eminence. The lilies are not the only contributors to the spectacular features of life in Bermuda. The island community is a British colony and military post and the periodical parades of red-coated soldiers add a touch of the bizarre to life in a tropical little community. Likewise are the quick winks speaking a cockney dialect a source of amusement and the quaint little white houses attract every person with the slightest trace of home-love in his make-up. But, after all, it is the lilies which constitute

In most instances the lily tracts are surrounded by walls, but visitors are usually welcomed. Some idea of the beautiful spectacle afforded by these vast masses of gleaming white blossoms, gently swaying in the breeze, may be formed from the fact that there are a number of lily fields in Bermuda each of which are 25 acres in extent and there are some lily the omnipresent, ever-satisfying attraction. The lily fields are easily and comfortably reached, thanks to a network of hard and perfect shell roads. farms where from 30 to 40 acres of bloom may be seen in a single field. Many of the stalks are literally laden down with the precious posies. Indeed Bermuda holds the record for the production of the greatest number of lilies on a stalk, as high as 145 perfect flowers having been in bloom on a single plant at one time. A large proportion of the sweeter rivals of the Bermuda onion which overspread the islands in the spring are shipped to the United States for Easter. The employment of fast steamships and the comparative nearness of Bermuda makes it possible to get whole cargoes of cut Easter lilies to the large cities on the Atlantic coast promptly and in perfect condition. In the average Bermuda landscape it seems as though every detail had been arranged with a view to maintaining harmony with the billowy fields of white. The small, cottage-like houses, built of coral, would appear almost glaringly white were it not that in almost every instance a contrast is afforded by clinging rose bushes and sturdy vines which entwine the habitations. According to tradition, it was an American woman—Mrs. George Russell Hastings, niece of the late ex-President Hayes—who first gave to the people of Bermuda the idea of growing Easter lilies on a commercial basis. In 1878 Mrs. Hastings planted some bulbs in Bermuda and, finding that they took kindly to the thin, rich soil, she urged the farmers of the islands to raise lilies as well as vegetables. Soon it was found that an acre of lilies would net three or four times as much revenue as an acre of onions.

The AMERICAN POULTRY INDUSTRY

WHETHER American industry has a heavier tax suddenly put upon its resources than that imposed upon the poultry industry at Eastertide, it comes about largely, of course, through the significance of the egg as the emblem of the universal meaning of the spring holiday. It is not, moreover, the actual consumption of eggs on the Easter breakfast table that is solely responsible for this heavy drain upon an important branch of our food market. That is an important factor, to be sure, but it must be remembered that millions of thousands of eggs are, in fact, suddenly "withdrawn from circulation" as eatables at Easter time. In this category are countless numbers of the colored eggs which have been dyed for the occasion and most of which are never intended to be eaten. Similarly there are the myriad eggs which are used for egg rolling and other childish games on Easter and Easter Monday and which are, for the most part, an actual as well as a theoretical loss at the close of the day.

The largest poultry dealers declare that the drain upon the egg market at the close of Lent is only rivaled by the strain imposed upon that other branch of the industry—that covering live and dressed fowls—at Thanksgiving and Christmas. With the steady increase in the Easter egg requisitions of the American people and the price advancing at times to about 50 to 75 cents per dozen in many of our most populous cities, it is small wonder that the purveyors of Easter ammunition are greatly concerned regarding the various projects for increasing the egg production of American hens. Much has been accomplished in this direction by the introduction of scientific breeding methods somewhat similar in scope to the methods followed in breeding horses and dogs. Only with chickens the qualifications of pedigree necessary to win places in the breeding pens include records of having laid at least 160 eggs per year. The source of supply for America's Easter eggs is no longer restricted to those farming communities where the poultry and egg business is in effect a "side line" and supplementary to grain growing or some other agricultural activity. A tremendous aggregate of eggs is obtained through such channels—often through the enterprise of the women folk of the farms, who are allowed the "butter and egg money" as a personal income—but heavy dependency is now placed upon the great poultry farms which specialize in this particular sphere. To convey a more vivid idea of the magnitude of these fountain heads of the annual flood of Easter eggs it may be noted that one of the largest American poultry farms is 82 acres in extent and the buildings and poultry yards cover more than 35 acres. This metropolis of the feathered aristocrats is lighted by electricity and heated by steam. The farm has its own water system, with a complete system of piping leading to all parts of the institution and in one of the buildings is a huge food cooker, with a capacity of 1,000 gallons. In the laying department of this particular farm are more than 2,000 hens and this tremendous flock contributes from 1,000 to 1,200 eggs daily. For gathering these eggs promptly a novel system has been perfected and as the eggs are collected the date is stamped upon each one. Each individual egg is neatly wrapped in tissue paper ere it is dispatched to market.

Although no recent accurate statistics are obtainable covering the entire country, it is known that the consumption of eggs by the people of the United States, even under normal conditions, is such as to astound persons who have never had occasion to become familiar with the magnitude of this food industry. New York City alone receives about 30 carloads of eggs every working day in the year and other cities have proportionate appetites. Of course the current production of eggs is nowhere near sufficient to meet the demand at the Easter season. Great quantities of eggs are taken from cold storage for the Easter trade and, incidentally, it may be mentioned that the cold storage system has become one of the most important adjuncts of the poultry industry.
